Forecast for Tuesday 24 May 2022

Weather: Showers are likely in the early hours of Tuesday and during Tuesday morning. The thunder risk is very small, but the odd rumble of thunder is possible in the heaviest showers. The showers are expected to clear by 14:00 to leave a bright dry afternoon, with sunny spells. UV levels will be high in the sunshine during the afternoon. It will become quite breezy though, especially after dark.

Chance of cloud-free hill tops above 600m: 70% until 14:00, with some shower clouds obscuring the hill tops for brief periods. After 2pm: 90%. After 9pm, 40% with some low cloud moving in from the west.

Low cloud and visibility: generally good, with reasonable views of distant hills. However, in any heavy showers before 14:00, rain may reduce visibility to 4000m or so.

Forecast for Wednesday 25 May 2022

Weather: Wind and cloud will increase in the early hours as a weather front approaches from the west. Persistent rain will arrive from around 05:00, continuing to around 14:00. This will be accompanied by low cloud and hill fog which will cover the mountain tops, and hills down to around 300m above sea level. As the weather front clears, it will stay windy and the rain will be replaced by occasional showers, which will gradually clear by 18:00.

Maximum wind: 30 mph with gusts of 40 mph on the summits during the morning.

Chance of cloud-free hill tops above 600m: Until 14:00, 20% with low cloud down to 300m. After 14:00, 70% with summits obscured by shower clouds at times.

Low cloud and visibility:

Until 14:00, cloud and hill fog will bring low visibility down to 100m or less, on the hills above 300m above sea level. Rain and mist at lower levels could lower visibility here to 4000m or so.

Temperature: Valleys: 8C at dawn rising to 17 C in the afternoon
At 600m: 5C at dawn rising to 9 C in the afternoon.
Freezing level: above summits
